Easter Safety

10 Safety tips for Easter egg hunting

Easter is a time for goodies, great food, candy, little toys and indoor and outdoor activities galore. Keep your kids safe during Easter celebrations by following these 10 simple tips.

Easter Safety tip #1

To prevent choking and exposure to choking hazards, children under the age of 5 should not be given small candy. Be sure to give out age-appropriate candy and be watchful of little ones at all times.

Easter Safety tip #2

Toys with small pieces are also choking hazards so be mindful of any toys handed out to young children.

Easter Safety tip #3

Decorating eggs is one of the most fun Easter traditions for children. However, remember that eggs can be hazardous and quickly spoil if not refrigerated properly before and after you decorate them. Hard-boiled eggs left out for several hours as part of a hunt or centerpiece should not be eaten.

Easter Safety tip #4

When preparing eggs for the hunt, wash hands before and after working with raw eggs, as well as any utensils or dishes used. Do not use eggs that have been cracked or broken.

Easter Safety tip #5

If you are going to be outside for long periods for an Easter egg hunt or other outdoor games, remember to apply sunscreen.

Easter Safety tip #6

Remember that some kids have nut allergies that are very serious. Check with parents before offering any chocolate bunnies or other candies that might have

Easter Safety tip #9

For indoor egg hunts, do not hide eggs near outlets, hard to reach areas, near glass or other breakables or dangerous spots.

Easter Safety tip #10

Designate only certain rooms of the house for indoor egg hunts so children aren't running around the house unsupervised.

Easter Safety tip #7

Set up a boundary for an outdoor Easter egg hunt so kids are not wandering off or into places that aren't safe or supervised.

Easter Safety tip #8

Separate age groups so that the large kids are not running off for their eggs and knocking over smaller children. Or enforce a no running rule.
